Mario is writing to his friend, Kay, about his memorable school days.

Dear Kay,

How time flies! Our primary school life is coming to an end soon. We will have to say goodbye to each other after the graduation ceremony.

When I was writing this letter, I cannot help recalling the happy days we have spent together. Although you sometimes play tricks on me, you have been a nice and helpful friend to me.

Remember the last Halloween? All our classmates put on fancy costumes. I was wearing a vampire-bat costume and you were in a witch one. Plump! We carelessly ran into the pumpkin lantern. It went into pieces. As the culprits, we were asked to sing a song. We mimicked birds flying while singing. It was great fun!

One more memorable moment with you is the last Christmas. We joined the Joint-School Christmas Party and had spent a wonderful night together. We were dancing and singing all night long. Also, we ate a lot of traditional Christmas dishes, such as, the gingerbread, the roasted turkey and the chocolate cake. They were so delicious. That night, we exchanged Christmas presents too. The present I got from you, the robot singing Christmas carols, became one of my favourite gifts. Sometimes when I am blue, I would listen to the songs to cheer myself up.

Those were the days. I wish the graduation ceremony would never come. Let's keep contact by phone or through e-mails. Isn't it a good idea?

Love,
Mario
