A Trip to Water World

Last Saturday, I went to Water World with my family. We had a few accidents. Dad was hungry so he went to the food stalls to order some food. He decided to order some ramen noodles. He went to one of the tables to eat. He accidentally slipped and split the noodles on his arm. The noodles were very hot so he got a burn on his arm. Luckily, it wasn't too bad.

Then, my elder sister wanted to play on the water slides. There was a popular water slide called 'Dragon Slides'. She was excited and ran off. I went after her. She was putting on her swimming goggles. She slipped and banged her head right on the pole. Her hand pushed her goggles into her eyes and hurt her right eye. It wasn't too bad. The doctor said she needed to take a rest for a few days.

Then my mum sat on a beach bed near the swimming pool.

She was sitting with my baby sister. Then my mum got a phone call from her best friend. She was chatting and laughing. She seemed happy. My baby sister was playing with her toys. She threw her rubber duck into the pool. My mum wasn't aware of that. She was chatting on the phone. My baby sister crawled near the pool. She nearly stepped in and drowned. Luckily, my mum stopped her at the last second so my sister didn't fall in the pool.

The next day, I went to the hospital to see my family. My dad's arm rapped in a thick layer of bandage. My sister's right eye had an eyepatch. I asked the doctor if they would recover. Luckily, he said they would recover in a few days.

In the end, everything was fine. I learnt that I should be careful. It was a stressful day!
