The Football Competition

We had a football competition with ABC school last Monday. It was very exciting at the very beginning of the competition. It was cold and cloudy. Some of us wore trousers. Some of us wore scarves. We went to the football pitch to have the serious match. We were delighted.

Unfortunately, the ABC school lost the competition and the teammates felt annoyed. One of their teammates even shouted at our team's leader Liam. Liam was a shy boy so he didn't do anything but walked away. One of our classmates Ryan grabbed their leader's hand and said, 'You shouldn't shout at our leader! You guys are so disrespectful!' 'We didn't do anything wrong! You guys cheated in the match!' said their leader. 'When did we cheat? Don't tell lies.' Ryan shouted. After that, a school war occurred. It was so terrifying!

I was speechless. I saw them fighting. Suddenly, I wanted to settle the argument. 'Weren't we excited and joyful at first? Why do we need to fight just because of the result?' I said. All of the people looked at me but they acted like they didn't care about what I said. They fought again. It was very embarrassing for me at that moment.

I ran away. Suddenly, I saw my class teacher Miss Chan. I told her everything and she was very angry. Miss Chan had an idea. She took me to an ice cream shop and bought me some ice cream. After I ate the ice cream, she told me a plan and we went back to the football pitch. 'The ice cream tastes very good. Thank you very much!' I said. Miss Chan nodded and said, 'Only those who did not join the fight could eat the ice cream.' All of the students looked at me again and the war was over. They apologized and became friends again.

Finally, we ate all of the ice cream. We learnt a lesson. What a day!
